WESLEY HEIGHTS, Washington, DC

This warm and inviting red-brick Colonial exudes classic elegance with storybook curb appeal — highlighted by lush mature landscaping, classic shutters, and window boxes. The home is conveniently located in one of Washington’s most desirable neighborhoods, Wesley Heights, just one block from Horace Mann Elementary and the restaurants and shops on New Mexico Avenue. A designer-owned residence, showcased on the cover of Washington Post Home magazine, features grand-scale rooms, custom details, and sophisticated finishes throughout. Upon entering the home through the enchanting red door, the foyer opens up to a spacious living room with a wood-burning fireplace and French-inspired dining room with a level walkout to an attractive south-facing patio and garden with a lighted and fanned pergola. From there a Butler's pantry/pass through bar and secret powder room take you into the kitchen. The home's second floor features three bedrooms, two full bathrooms and access to a large attic space with ample storage. The fully finished lower level with an en suite bathroom offers flexibility as a family room, guest room, playroom, or office. Parking is always easy in the attached garage and additional driveway space.
